Who I am

Software engineer

Passionate software developer since 2001, focusing on code quality and readability.

I'm a continuous lerner: I keep myself up-to-date reading technical books, articles and attending conferences, sharing the gained knowledge with team mates as soon as possible.

I'm also passionate about open source: Linux user since 2005, I like to contribute to some project by submitting bugs and give feedback to the developers.

I have skills for relating to coworkers and for working in teams made of people with different degrees of technical competence.

I'm used to extreme programming practices such as TDD, continuous integration and collective code ownership.

Speaker at local software events (JUG Torino, JUG Milano and Torino's edition of Linux Day).

I would like to both code and design the projects I'm involved with.
